Order Picker License Fort McMurray - Order picking is likewise known as order preparation operation. This is among the chief processes within a warehouse and consists of people known as order pickers, taking and collecting articles in a particular quantity prior to shipment to be able to complete customer orders. Order picking is an easy warehousing process. The efficiency in which this particular job is accomplished can be directly linked to the productivity of a supply chain. Thus, order picking is one of the most controlled logistic processes. Order picking falls within the category of the warehouse management system.

There are several specific kinds of order picking. The main types consist of: wave picking method, pick to box method, piece picking or picker to part method, sorting systems method and zone picking method.

The pick to box method comprises the order picker filling the box with the things from her or his station. The box then moves to the other picking locations until the customer order is finish. In this method, there is no movement of the order picker personnel. In the wave picking method, the order pickers move all-around to be able to gather the necessary things for some orders. The picker to part method or piece picking is similar where the order picker or pickers move so as to collect the items required but for one order only.

There is no movement by the order picker in the sorting systems method. Rather, stuff are brought to the orderpicker by an automatic system like for instance an automatic storage system or a conveyor system. In the zone picking method, each order picker is assigned to one specific area. They are responsible for only realizing order picking in this particular zone.
